JOY IN OUR TOWN

Hope for At-Risk Students

Denver Street School believes that a quality education is the most effective approach to transforming many underprivileged members of our society into productive citizens. Denver Street School is a Christian school. Tom Tillapaugh, Executive Director, discussed issues surrounding at-risk students. It is their hope that the students will know and understand the transforming power of Jesus Christ, and that they will experience His love while they attend Denver Street School.

Hope for Adolescent Girls

Hope Academy is a place where hope blossoms! Tom Tillapaugh, Executive Director of Hope Academy, shared the struggles of many young girls in Denver. Hope Academy offers hope, healing, and a safe and loving Christian environment to girls victimized by Denver's pervasive sex trafficking problem. Hope Academy's goal is to remove as many obstacles as possible in order to assist students in their journey toward success.

Hope for the Homeless

David Clifton, Founder and President of World for Jesus International / David Clifton Ministries, Inc., addressed issues surrounding homelessness in Colorado. David Clifton Ministries' outreaches are planned to help fulfill the Great Commission, preach the Gospel and feed the poor! through meeting people at their physical and spiritual points.

Hope for your Future

As a faith-based organization, Denver Works fulfills biblical mandates regarding caring for our neighbors, plus they tackle poverty in the most effective and efficient means they know of, which is employment. Robert L. Andrews II, Executive Director of Denver Works, encourages the unemployed with obstacles to become self-supporting through job preparation and placement.

Hope for the Unemployed

Robert L. Andrews II, Executive Director of Denver Works, gave us pertinent information about the hardships of the unemployed in Denver. Denver Works empowers the unemployed and those with barriers to employment. It is their vision is to see all jobseekers in the community employed and fulfilling their God-given design.
